

My Summer

By: Jack Hong

Imaginary day of

This summer, I did a lot of relaxing and recovering to get ready for another year of school. That involved doing a lot of nothing, so instead of drawing a picture filled with boring stuff like tv's, sleeping and my occasional trips to the park or library, I decided to draw a picture partly from my imagination.

It's picture of a beautiful summer day with a bright yellow sun, beautiful flowers, a grassy field, insects and me flying a bright red kite. (the rocket's there just because I think it's cool.)

In real life, I did go to minoru park a few times over the summer and I do have a kite, though it's not red. So this isn't completely ridiculous. It's something that might have happened.

Vacation